“Black Nationalism is the only real solution for Black People in the United States.”

The Mosiah Movement

I am part of a small number of persons who are forming an organization called the Mosiah Movement. It is my hope that the Mosiah Movement will be made up of a large number of individuals who are willing to adapt to financial challenges, but unwilling to be slaves to an unjust financial and political system (not to mention racist). Following are a few of many important proposals I will put forward, proposals I am very serious about. It is my hope that the Mosiah Movement will be able to implement as many of them as possible. I say that because, in order to be effective, the Mosiah Movement will require the participation of quite a large number of individuals who are serious about achieving the objective. That involves investing the time and resources that success demands; full time participation, not the part time and “left over minutes” type of commitment Black individuals tend to contribute to the “Black” struggle.

Please note: I would not be surprised if some of these proposals appeared on the list of other individuals. As far as I am concerned, the more of these type proposals the better.

(1) Since we are all citizens of the Republic of New Afrika and Washitaw Nation, and since I don’t think either of those ideologies is being properly represented today, I will propose that officers be commissioned to carry out the responsibilities nations generally carry out. As citizens, we have the right to repossess the powers we authorized others to make use of, and vest those powers in the hands of more efficient operatives. It is my hope that the Mosiah Movement will begin establishing the necessary alliances, issuing the relevant documents, and making Us competitive so we can become a viable factor in the day to day realities of Black People.

(2) I am going to propose that the Mosiah Movement revolve its educational activities around home schooling, online classes (including those of Aset University), and independent Black schools-- in that order. The home schooling of Black youngsters should not be compromised by the dictates of a government that does not have Our interests at hand. However, the extent to which parents adhere to the dictates of a hostile government while educating their children is up to them.

(3) I am going to propose that the Mosiah Movement make Black individuals aware of options they have outside of the United States. Black individuals and families who are tired of dealing with the United States should not feel obligated to stay here and take what the United States dishes out. The Republic of New Afrika and Washitaw Nation should put programs in motion that will make it easier for those of Us who want to relocate to make that move. The United States is one of the worst countries in the world to live in, particularly when it comes to quality of life type considerations. If we put the work into it, we can generate some alternatives in that regard.

(4) I am also going to propose that those Black individuals who can’t get beyond civil rights, Black capitalism and “the almighty one” be encouraged to not involve themselves in the core activities of the Mosiah Movement. Civil rights is a proven loser (and counter progressive to boot), Black capitalism is a proven loser (and counter progressive to boot), and “God/Allah” (if s/he exists) does not get involved in the affairs of human beings (something ancient Africans realized thousands of years ago). Therefore, We are better off taking those approaches off of Our list of worthwhile options.

These are just four of the proposals I will make. I will write about others in coming articles.

I’m hoping the Mosiah Movement will be replete with individuals who can look at the United States and mean it when they say, “Kiss my Black ass.” Yes, we will need a collection of serious individuals, but I do not plan to be part of any recruitment drive. I will be active in asking people to take part, but I would rather work with individuals who really want to be with us. Those types, the willing types, are more likely to stick with it and persevere. When individuals are recruited, it implies that they have been convinced to do X or join Y. I have learned that if you have to convince someone to join today, you’ll probably end up having to carry that someone tomorrow. I don’t plan to carry any human being who is more than 2 years old.

Property of the USA

At the turn of the 20th century, people could travel to other countries whenever they wanted to if they could afford it. They didn't need a passport because freedom of movement is a human right. Then, it was determined that people had to acquire a passport from a government before being able to leave and reenter most countries. Any time the government wants to restrict your movements, it can revoke your passport or charge you with a crime (illegally leaving or entering the country). The passport helped turn people into the property of a government.

At the turn of the 20th century, workers in the United States did not have to pay income taxes. No laws were ever passed that required people to pay income taxes, but if US citizens fail to do so the United States government can take their property and put them in jail. Even worse, if you are a US citizen, if you make money anywhere in the world, even if you don't live or work in the United States, you are required to pay income taxes. Proof, again, that the government of the US of A considers citizens of the US of A its property.

Not only are citizens its property, everything its citizens own is its property also. And to rub your face in the dirt, the government of the United States will allow companies to take your property from you without fear of consequences. That's how governments chattel.

So many ignorant people criticize leaders like Fidel Castro because they place limits on personal property rights, but the fact of the matter is that citizens of Cuba have more personal property rights than citizens of the good old US of A. Citizens of Cuba have just as much freedom of movement as citizens of the US of A. What the citizens of Cuba don't have are the basic worries that keep citizens of the US of A stressed out.

Most white people in the United States of America don't seem to mind being the property of a government that doesn't give squat about them. Unfortunately, for all intents and purposes, too many so-called African Americans don't mind either. They keep struggling for things that will keep them under the control of the US of A. Civil rightists, Black capitalists, religious converts, reverts and cowards; struggling to remain the property of ways of life that despise them. Lord ham mercy!
